

St John's Hospital Cemetery

Names of those who lie at rest in this cemetery.

Updated October 2022

Foreword

These burial records have been transcribed from the Hospital Burial Record books dated 1855 -1888 and 1920 – 1957. The record book/s for 1888 - 1920 cannot be transcribed as they are missing. Evidence found in the existing Burial Records indicate at least 1154 burials occurred during this time. If anyone knows the whereabouts of the missing Burial Record book/s, we can then fill in the remaining names. Similarly if you know the name, date or grave number of anyone buried in the cemetery during that time period we could add their names to this register.

Hospital Admission records and Patient records lodged at the Lincolnshire Archives are being consulted to find out the occupations of those buried here. This is an ongoing process and some people's occupations may not be ascertained as these records are not complete. The 100 year public access law applies to these records. Those buried here came from many different occupations, some of which no longer exist.

There are a number of ex-military personnel buried in this cemetery. It is expected that if the records from 1888 to 1920 can be compiled further military personnel will be identified. St John's Hospital was one of the hospitals used by the military during both World Wars. There are a number of people already identified whose birth country may have been in Europe, possibly Poland.

The Burial Records show that the youngest person buried in the cemetery was 6 days old and the oldest is 95 years. The people buried here were not all patients a few were infants of patients and a couple were workers at the hospital. Many of those buried here did not come from Lincoln but from all over the County with a few from outside of Lincolnshire.

While every effort has been made to ensure the names have been spelt correctly some have been difficult to read. Those names that have been particularly difficult to read have been put in bold and italics. If you come across a name in this document that you know has been misspelt please let the author or the Parish Council Clerk know with the patient number and/or grave number and it will be corrected.

Update 2022: Our thanks go to Terry Lamyman for allowing me to use his research into St John's Hospital patient records and where those patients are buried, to fill in some of the names missing from the hospital burial registers.

St John's Hospital Cemetery on Sleaford Road Bracebridge Heath has 2058 burial plots measuring nine feet by four foot six inches (2.74m by 1.37m) There are also a few unmarked graves and 21 grave sized plots believed to be graves marked with Roman numerals.

There are at least 3866 burials within this consecrated burial ground but until the missing Burial Records are found and the significance of the Roman numeral grave plots is discovered, the exact number of burials will remain unknown. At the present time nearly four years of records are missing.

Every person within this cemetery has a story to tell. Some of those stories may be added at a later date.

It is not known how many more burials there were in the 1855 -1888 section of the burial ground as the burial register is missing.

Neither is known how many burials from Mr Terry Allister's information were buried in the 1855 Cemetery before starting to bury patients in the 1880 Cemetery Extension

The 1887 Extension: used from 1888? - 1917

Notice that all the space is used for burials even the original paths. Today's footpath across this cemetery runs on top of at least 14 graves.

This is the middle section of the grave yard

This Burial Book is missing. Graves 1 to 552

The number of burials between 18th May 1888 and 8th May 1891 (3 years) is not known as these burial records are missing and as yet is has not been determined who was buried in the cemetery from the patients records

The entries below (from May 1891- March 1919) were compiled by Mr Terry Lamyman from the hospital patient records and by ensuring the patients were not buried elsewhere. Mr Lamyman has given permission for his records to be included in this document.

There are no grave numbers available. The left hand column just shows the order of burial.

Patient records show more information than the burial records, therefore the previous abode and profession is included in the tables below

It is hoped that one day the missing records will be found or compiled so that all the names of those buried in this cemetery can be recorded and remembered.

The 1917 Extension

This layout is different from the original map on the last page. This is due to three graves being dug in the space for two graves. Extra graves have also been added near the quarry (Today it is known as The Hump)

It is not known who was the first person to be buried in this section of the cemetery as the records between 28th March 1919 and 2nd January 1920 (10 months) are missing and have, as yet, not been ascertained from patient records.
Until these missing records are found we cannot determine which patients from Allister Lamyman's list of burials are buried in the 1917 cemetery extension.

The records below are taken from a surviving burial book and start from grave number 175 on 2nd January 1920.
